Edible Fashion excitement builds

Hawke's Bay's Edible Fashion Awards return to Toitoto on November 13, and one of its biggest supporters could not be more excited.

Dazz Woodward has entered Edible the past four years, after she first attended as a spectator in 2015 and came away "flabbergasted and delighted". She says the Edible Fashion Awards give her the opportunity to connect with other designers in our community, both adults and talented young people.

"As a designer, the event inspired me to create and pushed me to experiment with unusual construction techniques and materials," she says.

The first year she entered she won the Supreme Award with "Bride of the Black Knight", which was created from woven plastic shopping bags and Black Knight Licorice.

"I am passionate about giving back to my community and the Edible Fashion Awards has provided a fulfilling opportunity for me to do this. Over the last three years, I have worked with young designers at Te Kura o Pakipaki and Peterhead Schools, to support them in bringing their Edible design ideas to fruition."

Dazz calls herself "one of life's participators" and she loves the community element of her involvement with schools for the Edible Fashion Awards.

"It also involves entire, very supportive families in their creative endeavours to transform and recycle discarded objects into clever and astounding wearable art."

Peterhead School teacher Rebecca Biggs says Dazz is "a wonderful part of our school community now".

"She is amazing, full of energy and has a fantastic sense of humour! She really connected with our senior students, who were so excited to showcase their designs. The Edible Fashion Awards has been a great experience for our school."

Now in her 70s, Dazz swears every year will be her last, with 2019 "definitely, absolutely 100 per cent" her last entry. Except she couldn't resist the temptation to get involved one more time, especially once it was announced Edible was returning to the Opera House at Toitoto.

"I also see the Edible Fashion Awards event as an important occasion to celebrate and salute the diversity of all our local growers and farmers. And returning to the Toitoto Opera House offers another wonderful opportunity to celebrate our community and for our young people to feel at home in this outstanding cultural centre," Dazz says.

Possibly giving a hint at one of the materials she might have incorporated in her design this year, she says "Rubarella is off to Toitoto and I couldn't be more excited!"

Deco Bay Brass perform in Functions on Hastings earlier this year.

Deco Bay Brass honour our fallen this November

This Armistice Day, Deco Bay Brass will give the Hastings community an opportunity to reflect on and celebrate the Anzac Day that COVID-19 took from us this year, with a moving Remembrance concert to be held at Toitoto – Hawke's Bay Arts & Events Centre.

Deco Bay Brass spokesperson Teresa Simcox says many sacrifices have been made by many New Zealanders this year, yet they are a mere fraction of the sacrifice and suffering our small nation endured through World War I and II.

"We felt there was a need to give people the space, time and atmosphere of a dawn service (the darkness, the shared breath, the anticipated shimmering of daybreak, the haunting cry of the bugle), but with the beautiful surrounds and comfort of the newly renovated Toitoto Opera House – which also missed out on the long, joyful re-opening season that it justly deserved."

She says the concert will be an exploration of sound and light, showcasing well-known local artists and music, while also touching on the traditional elements of Anzac Day celebrations, with the Last Post and Reveille to be performed.

"We'll also pay homage to the musicians of the 1930s, and remind audiences that we should not forget those who fought for our freedoms," Teresa says.

Featuring renowned New Zealand tenor Patrick Power ONZM, classical artist Dianne Abraham, and local singer-songwriter Wyn Drabble, the Deco Bay Brass Remembrance concert is sure to deliver nostalgic memories and bittersweet goodbyes.

When: Sunday, November 8.

Where: Toitoto – Hawke's Bay Arts & Events Centre.

Tickets: Adults $20, students/seniors $10. Tickets from the Toitoto Box Office or online at www.toitotvenues.co.nz

Hawke's Bay Tourism proudly facilitates the F.A.W.C! programme twice a year on behalf of the region's food and wine industries, says Hawke's Bay Tourism chief executive Hamish Saxton.

"When F.A.W.C! is celebrated, you can't help but notice the wide range of talented food and winemakers that call this region home. From busy urban restaurants and funky cafes to country estates, artisan producers and everything in between, it is the passion of these Hawke's Bay foodies and wine merchants that is inspiring."

Carols in Cornwall Park
December 22 - 4pm to 6pm

Our annual festive celebration in beautiful Cornwall Park is fun for all the family. Bring a picnic, sing carols and enjoy live music. There will be kids' activities and food vendors.

Come and relax at Rose Sunday

Rose Sunday is nearly here, and what better way to celebrate the arrival of Spring than to take your family and gardening enthusiast friends to Frimley Park to stop and smell the roses.

This Hastings District Council-supported event has been running for more than 50 years, offering an afternoon of relaxation in the beautiful Frimley Park exploring the gardens that are home to more than 5500 rose bushes.

In the 1950s, Elsie, Arnold and Heathcote Williams, the three children of James and Mary Margaret Williams, donated the 47 acres for a park in memory of their parents. The family owned a 3000-acre station they named 'Frimley' after a village in Surrey, England.

As part of the park's development, the Hastings Rose Society took charge of creating a comprehensive rose garden from 1965. Half the proposed number of rose bushes, 20 of each cultivar, were planted in the first year, with the same number planted over the following two years. Those 4000 bushes across 300 varieties have now grown to more than 5500.

The event is hosted by members of the Hastings Rose Society who will be able to give visitors advice on growing great roses, and answer any questions.

Bring the picnic blanket and relax amongst the blooms, enjoying entertainment from the Twin City Stompers, facepainting for the kids, coffee, iced treats to eat, and more.

Growers Employment Expo

Are you looking for more flexible work hours? Want part-time work just on the weekends? Or how about earning some extra income as you travel around New Zealand for summer?

A free employment expo is being held in Hastings this month, an opportunity to find out what seasonal work is on offer and how to sign up for exciting career opportunities in the horticulture, viticulture and summer fruits industries.

COVID-19 has severely impacted the availability of overseas workers, and Hawke's Bay growers need about 10,000 workers between November and April for thinning, picking, packing and processing our world renowned produce.

Hastings Mayor Sandra Hazlehurst says we feed the country and the world with our produce and the industry need everyone's help.

"We know the horticulture and viticulture sectors are extremely valuable to our region and helping with the seasonal labour shortage is a top priority of all us."

Mayor Hazlehurst has brought together the industry, MSD, MBIE, EIT and other local councils to hold the expo, where there will be information about career opportunities, summer work, pastoral care and youth employment pathways with He Poutama Rangatahi providers.

Hawke's Bay Winegrowers' Association's Xan Harding says growers are thinking very differently about ways and means of hiring their staff.

"The industry knows it needs to be innovative and flexible when it comes to employing different workers. They know that expecting people to work six days a week, 10 hours a day is not going to suit many people and they're prepared to do whatever it takes to have the right person in their team - whether that be through accommodation, transport, meals, training and upskilling and flexibility around work hours."

New Zealand Apples and Pears is also getting creative with a new campaign, Pick Tiki, to entice school leavers and tertiary students 16 years and over looking for summer work.

It brings together the best employers, and links them to students, also offering help to find accommodation and transport. An 0800 helpline is also available. It encourages students to get together with their mates, to meet new ones and to explore their backyards. Throughout the summer the Pick Tiki team will work with growers to host BBQ's and activities that Pick Tiki students can take part in during their free time for a memorable summer experience.

Drop into the expo to find out more about the perfect job for summer.
